Iceberg Lettuce (24 count)

The main produce items were all pretty stable last week with lettuce the only big mover. After stopping for a breather in the week prior, 24-count iceberg continued to climb in the latest set of prices. The one-week pause was pretty odd as far as Q1/Q2 lettuce price spikes go, but regardless, the market is back on the front foot now and will likely continue to climb for another one or two weeks before turning back lower in earnest. 48-count hass avocados continued to surprise, remaining level w/w at a time when they're usually climbing into yearly highs between April and June. We still expect to see some strength over the next month or so, but these past two weeks have certainly given us pause. 50 lb. yellow onions were also steady, but we're still looking for a downturn to start in the next week or two. 25 lb. large roma tomatoes were level w/w as well, but late March to early April is usually when romas are at their cheapest for the year, so we're expecting to see some weakness over the coming weeks. Price bases noted below.
